History Facts with Braedyn

Did you know in WW2 the Germans created one the most advanced WW2 combat aircraft known as the Messerschmitt Me 262.

There were 2 versions of the fighter jet, one was used as a fighter nicknamed Schwalbe (Swallow) and the other was used as a fighter bomber nicknamed Sturmvogel (Storm bird).

It was first introduced in April 1944 but it first flight took place on the 18th of April 1941 and it had a piston engine, in 1945 the Messerschmitt retired in Germany and then in 1951 the Jet retired in in Czechoslovakia.

The top speed of the Me 262 was 869.4KPH (540MPH) and it was 193.2KPH (120MPH) faster than the American Mustang and possibly the British Spitfire.

Messerschmitt Me 262 (German)

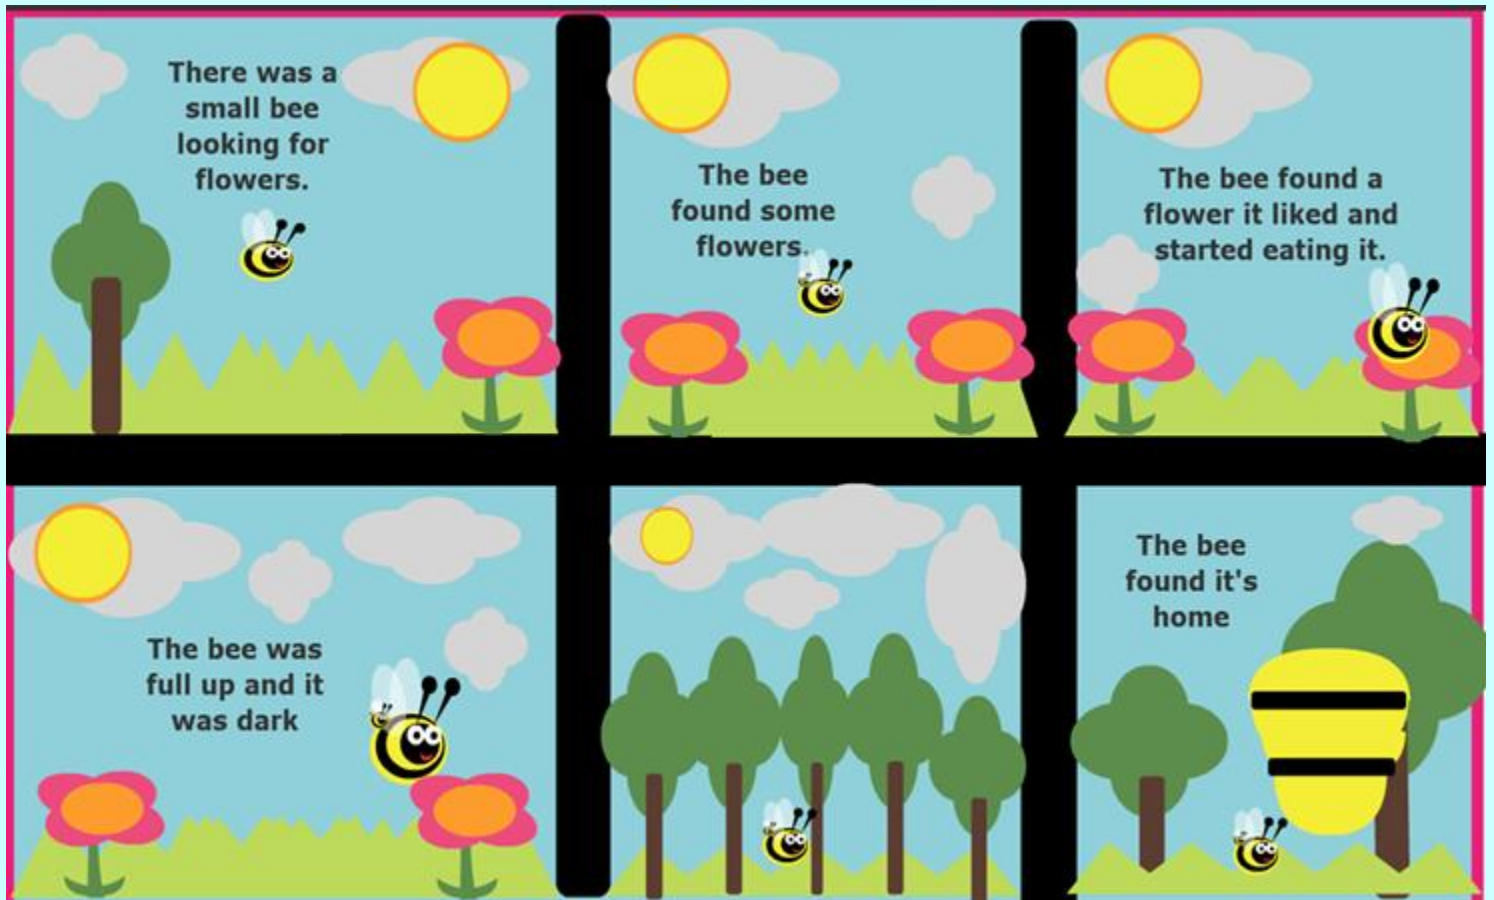

P51 Mustang (American)

Supermarine Spitfire (British)

A black and white line drawing of a rectangular card with rounded corners. The card is decorated with various Halloween-themed icons: three lollipops (one with horizontal stripes), three round candies with bows, three stars, and three jagged, leaf-like shapes. The words "TRICK", "OR", and "TREAT" are written in a large, bold, outlined font, stacked vertically in the center of the card. The background is filled with small circles and dots of varying sizes.
